

On October 15, 2015 LuxDoc a.s.b.l. will host its fourth Science Slam. Science what? Science Slam!

Young PhD candidates and researchers completing work related to Luxembourg are invited to present their on-going research in front of an audience that judges their performance. The contestants will present their research topics in exotic and exciting ways with performance styles that get the audience hooked while presenting highly intriguing and intellectual ideas in a manner understandable to the general public. Each artist has 10 minutes and not a second more!

Anyone looking for a challenge - either as a contestant aiming to be the star of the night or as a guest by getting his/her mind shaken up - should not miss this great event!

Slammers select their own performance methods.

Sing, shout, rap or dance - just do what it takes to make science sexy and attractive and become the hottest Science Slam scientist! English, French, German and Luxembourgish are all accepted and if you manage without language, you are encourage to do so as well!

So for all upcoming researchers: Take heart and come slamming - we want YOU!

To all those looking for the next big thing, this is the one event you simply cannot miss! Hurry up and reserve your seat or your place in the line-up at scienceslam@luxdoc.org (numbers are limited!) and see you at the “Casino, forum d'art contemporain”!